

Social and Personal.

A N event of much interest to Richmond society is the marriage of Miss Henrietta Temple Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Anderson, to William Bascom Jordan, which took place at the home of the bride's parents in Danville last evening at 8 o'clock. The house was beautifully decorated in palms, Southern smilax and myriads of lighted candles.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Hicks at an improvised altar in the bay window of the front drawing room, with a background of palms. Pedestals, roped in smilax, holding crystal candelabra, were on either side of the altar, and a wedding bell of bride roses was suspended from the ceiling. Professor Robert Phifer, Jr., accompanied by Robert Phifer, Jr., on the violin, furnished the music during the evening.

Miss Bessie Watson, wearing a gown of green tissue, and carrying white lilies, was maid of honor, and Julian Jordan attended the groom as best man. Little Miss Catherine Thomas, in a dainty frock of white mull, hand-embroidered, with ruffles of pale green ribbons, was ring-bearer, and carried the ring in a white rose.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away, and wore an exquisite gown of white satin, trimmed in real lace and pearls. Her tulle veil was held with a wreath of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley and bride roses.

A brilliant reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Jordan left to spend their honeymoon in the South.

The Best Road to Success Is Concentration

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

No joy for which thy hungering heart has panted.

No hope it cherishes thro' waiting years.

But if thou dost deserve it, shall be granted.

For with each passionate wish the blessing nears.

Tune up the fine, strong instrument of thy being.

To chord with thy dear hope, and so when both in key and rhythm are agreeing.

Lo! thou shalt kiss the lips of thy desire.

The thing thou cravest so waits in the distance.

Wrapt in the silences, unseen and dumb;

Essential to thy soul and thy existence.

Live worthy of it—call, and it shall come.

The great men of India discovered the power of concentration long ago. The sun, focused in a lens, would burn a bunch of straw, but, scattered, would only mildly warm various objects. From this observation they came to consider how great was the power of concentrated thought.

And so came the wonderful achievements of the "yogis" and others who have learned how to so control the mental powers that they perform what many people not acquainted with the law of concentration call "miracles."

We all know that it is a term which stands for the control of one mind by another.

But many people do not know how that word originated. Here is the story:

Mesmer, the German savant, discovered the great power of the mind, generated by the concentration will, from the following observation: He was once on board a steamer, which unfortunately sank, and he was the only survivor. By means of a broken mast he reached the land. As it was becoming dark, he climbed a tree to protect himself against the attack of wild animals. He sat up the whole night on a branch of the tree.

Next morning as he was descending from the tree he noticed a huge serpent below, but apparently dead. Horrified at the sight, he did not dare to come down.

Discovery of Strange Force.
After a few moments he observed three birds fall into its mouth, which were at once swallowed. A short while after, two small animals slowly crawled into its mouth, which were also devoured immediately. Then he noticed the serpent stir and leave the place.

He was stupefied with fear and wonder, and could not account for what he saw.

But in his cool moments he arrived at the conclusion that it was due to great will power that the serpent was able to draw birds and animals for its food.

This afterwards led him to the discovery of what is known as mesmeric force, which is nothing but the will power developed by the concentration of mind.

This fact is worthy of your serious attention. You possess in your own mind a quality very like the sun. Your mind sends out rays and vibrations continually. But if these rays are scattered, and sent in a score of directions, and never focused for any length of time on any idea, they will have no force to bring you what you desire.

Make a Lens of Your Will.
Once learn how to make a lens of your will and turn the full strength of your mental sun upon whatever you long for, and the powerful concentrated rays will burn away the bunch of straw you call obstacles.

The ancients used the serpent as the symbol of wisdom. Perhaps this is not a misnomer for the serpent, as we see it in the story of Mesmer, know the law of concentration and used it to bring the food craved.

Just so may you bring success by keeping your mind fixed upon the purpose you have set as the goal of your desires.

Suppose you desire health, the first of all physical blessings.

If you desire health with the same intensity with which the serpent desired food, and if you expect it as absolutely, it will come.

It may not fall from space suddenly, but you will be enlightened and helped to see how to obtain and keep health.

Just so you may bring material things to you—money and power and opportunities for usefulness. But woe unto you if you use this law of concentration for anything which is selfish, cruel or base. Back of the law lies God. It was the power of divine concentration which brought the Universe into existence.

Terrible punishments follow those who use the great law for other than noble and worthy purposes.

Great joy comes to those who use it for good.
